Your clients give you 5 stars. Does the internet show that?

This is the Customer view: I looked at R&R Custom Home Remodeling the way a new client would. First what people say on Google, then what they find when they look for your website. Here is what I found.

On Google you have 5 stars, which means people who come to you leave happy. That's what makes someone trust you with their home. But when I opened your website, I noticed it still shows the Wix banner at the top and a long web address. That's something we can easily improve: your own domain, no banner, and a site that shows everything your reviews say about you.

3 of 12 points unlocked here. The full diagnosis comes with your website.

1 UNLOCKED

It's hard to use on a phone

Most visits come from phones. Small text and zooming in make people leave in seconds.

DO THIS TODAY
Open your site on your phone and remove anything you need to zoom to read. Bigger text, fewer blocks.

2 UNLOCKED

Your best work isn't on the first screen

Visitors decide in about three seconds. The first screen should show your results, not generic text.

DO THIS TODAY

3 UNLOCKED

The site doesn't match the trust of your reviews

Someone who arrives from your 5-star reviews expects the same quality. When the website doesn't show that, part of that trust gets lost on the way.

DO THIS TODAY
Add a WhatsApp button that is always visible, so the next step takes one tap.
