Your clients give you 5 stars. Does the internet show that?

This is the Customer view: I looked at R&R Custom Home Remodeling the way a new client would. First what people say on Google, then what they find when they look for your website. Here is what I found.

What clients say and what the internet shows

On Google, clients rate you

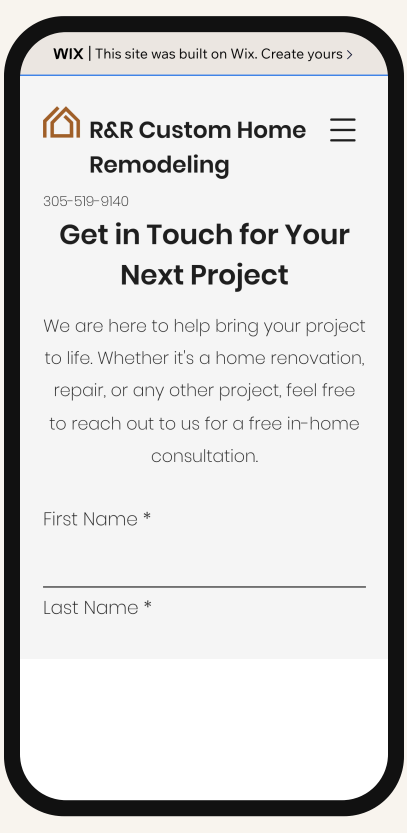

5 ★ stars on Google

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Every one of those stars was earned in person. That trust is your strongest asset.

When someone looks for your website

Hard to use on a phone

On Google you have 5 stars, which means people who come to you leave happy. That's what makes someone trust you with their home. But when I opened your website, I felt it doesn't yet show everything your reviews say about you.

3 of 12 points unlocked here. The full diagnosis comes with your website.

1 UNLOCKED

It's hard to use on a phone

Most visits come from phones. Small text and zooming in make people leave in seconds.

DO THIS TODAY

Open your site on your phone and remove anything you need to zoom to read. Bigger text, fewer blocks.

2 UNLOCKED

Your best work isn't on the first screen

Visitors decide in about three seconds. The first screen should show your results, not generic text.

Swap the first image for a real photo of your best work and add your best review right below it.

3 UNLOCKED

The site doesn't match the trust of your reviews

Someone who arrives from your 5-star reviews expects the same quality. An outdated site makes them doubt what they just read.

DO THIS TODAY

Add a WhatsApp button that is always visible, so the next step takes one tap.
