Your clients give you 5 stars. Does the internet show that?

This is the Customer view: I looked at R&R Custom Home Remodeling the way a new client would. First what people say on Google, then what they find when they look for your website. Here is what I found.

GOOGLE × WEBSITE

What clients say and what the internet shows

On Google, clients rate you

5 ★ stars on Google

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Every one of those stars was earned in person. That trust is your strongest asset.

When someone looks for your website

Your own domain, no banner

On Google you have 5 stars, which means people who come to you leave happy. That's what makes someone trust you with their home. But when I opened your website, I noticed it still shows the Wix banner at the top and a long web address. That's an easy fix: with your own domain and no banner, your website will look as professional as your work.

3 of 12 points unlocked here. The full diagnosis comes with your website.

1 UNLOCKED

A short address with your name

A long platform address is hard to remember and to share. A short address with your business name looks as professional as your work.

DO THIS TODAY
Check that your Google Business Profile shows your website and phone, and that both open with one tap.

2 UNLOCKED

Your name first, not the platform's

Today the platform's banner appears at the top, before your brand. Without it, the first thing people see is you.

DO THIS TODAY
Make sure your logo and one photo of your best project are the first things visitors see on the page.

3 UNLOCKED

The trust of your reviews, one tap away

Your Google reviews already do the selling. Linking them to a site on your own domain keeps that trust all the way to the first call.

DO THIS TODAY
Ask your last 3 happy clients for a Google review and reply to each one by name.
